Phase 1 Site Investigation

Ridgemon Park was originally a school and is now a youth training centre, focussing mainly on building and construction skills. There are also a few ex-classrooms sub-let to other small businesses.

CGL undertook a Phase 1 desk study that assessed the environmental setting of the site including a review of its history and local ground conditions, both in terms of potential contamination and engineering and foundation constraints.

A review of published geological and hydrogeological data was undertaken together with liaison with the Council's Building Control and Environmental Health departments to obtain information regarding general construction issues related to the area.

The desk study also included a conceptual site model providing a qualitative source-pathway-target risk assessment.
